WANTS LANDIS OUSTED FROM JOB

Chicago Attorney Says Job As Baseball Head Conflicts With Federal Position

Terms Case as "Vicious Infidelity to Public Service."

(By Associated Press)

Chicago, January 15.—A petition protesting against the employment of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis as national baseball commissioner has been prepared by Thomas J. Sutherland, a Chicago lawyer, and sent to the members of Congress from Illinois, it was learned today.

In a letter to Chicago newspapers Mr. Sutherland is said to have urged that they "comprehend the importance of this petition" called their attention to "this attempt to mule the government and also set an example of vicious infidelity to public service."

The petition demands action relative to Judge Landis' serving both as a judge and an agent of the baseball commission. It seeks to show that the judge, in accepting an annual salary from the baseball commission of $42,500 a year, while drawing a salary of $7,500 a year as federal judge, is acting in violation of the spirit of statutes preventing a government official from engaging in remunerative private enterprises.

HERRICK, LOWDEN AND MUNSEY MAY BE AMBASSADORS UNDER HARDING REGIME

Among the men, important appointments to be made by Harding are those of the ambassadors to foreign countries. Probable elimination of Frank O. Lowden as a cabinet possibility has caused political experts to link his name with the post of ambassador to Great Britain. Former ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, may be returned to that post, 'tis rumored. Frank A. Munsey is talked of as ambassador to Italy.

JOINT MEASURE FOR CONFERENCE GETS APPROVAL

(By Associated Press)

Washington, January 15.—The joint resolution requesting President Wilson to call a conference of nations of the world to consider universal disarmament was approved today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee without a dissenting vote.

The committee rejected nine to two an amendment by Representative Mason, Republican, of Illinois, that invitations to participate in the conference be extended to Ireland and the Philippines.

Although Democrats on the committee voted to report the resolution to the House they questioned the propriety of requesting President Wilson to act on the eve of his departure from office.

COMPANY CLAIMS GAS SUPPLY IS BEST IT CAN DO

(By Associated Press)

Lancaster, O., January 15.—Hundreds of fires went out on the west side here today when the gas pressure went down from four pounds to nothing.

The thermometer registered 25 above zero. Coal retailers are unable to supply the demand.

Hollister was killed and Engineer Harry Lynch, both of Cleveland, seriously injured, when the engine on Big Four passenger train No. 11, west-bound from New York to St. Louis, left the tracks at Linndale, near here early today, plunged down a thirty foot embankment and turned completely over pinning the fireman underneath.

Passengers were piled up in the cars but escaped injury. The wreck was caused by an eastbound freight engine jumping the track and side-swiping the passenger train engine.

HARGIS DEFENDS HEDGING IN GRAIN

Says Abolishment of Practice Would Disrupt Distribution

Says Interference Would Open Way to Few Big Speculators

(By Associated Press)

Washington, January 15.—Legislation restricting "speculative" transactions and hedging in the grain trade would upset the whole machinery of grain distribution and open the way to domination by a few powerful interests, D. L. Hargis, president of the Kansas City Board of Trade today told the House Agriculture Committee considering legislation to regulate grain exchanges.

Mr. Hargis defended the practice of hedging through sales of futures on grain acquired by elevator interests or commission brokers as absolutely essential to reduce risk and permit handling of grain on a narrow margin of profit.

Considering the advantage of the practices he said the grain speculator or the dealer in futures must be recognized as an indispensable cog in the machinery for grain distribution. Only in "rare instances has speculation affected the price of grain more than is desirable," Mr. Hargis said.

He declared the present system of grain trading not only did not reduce the farmers' profit but offers him the indispensable advantage of being able to market his grain in the absence of actual consumption demand.

Recent fluctuations in the grain market frequently attributed to speculation Mr. Hargis declared, were primarily due to a "dislocated transportation system."

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN ATTEMPTS TO KILL MINGO EX-SHERIFF

(By Associated Press)

Williamson, W. Va., January 16.—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate G. T. Blankenship, former sheriff of Mingo County, was made at Bluefield today at noon when an unidentified man leveled a pistol at him.

Blankenship struck his assailant's arm just as the gun was discharged.

The shot missed him but his face was badly cut by the barrel of the weapon.

The attack occurred just as Blankenship was to board a train. Blankenship's assailant escaped.

SCORES LEAP TO SAFETY DURING FIRE IN CHURCH

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, January 16.—Scores of men and women, their escape cut off by flames and dense smoke, leaped from second story windows when fire threatened the lives of 500 people in the Cory M. E. Church this morning.

Due to the coolness of the pastor, Rev. J. B. Redmond, and the prompt action of firemen in stretching nets, the list of injured was confined to four victims, none seriously hurt. The property loss was small.

FORD GAINS VOTES IN RECOUNT OF BALLOTS

In the group above are George B. Webster of St. Louis, a supervisor at the recount; Senator Spencer, James O. Murfin and Stewart Hanley (Newberry's counsel), and Fred R. Schmalzriedt (Ford's counsel).

"Early returns from scattered precincts," so to speak, have given Henry Ford a gain of 272 votes in the recount of the Ford-Newberry senatorial contest ballots by the senate elections committee, now conducting the recount. Senator Truman H. Newberry defeated Ford in the campaign. Ford demanded a recount of the votes. Newberry and sixteen other men were convicted later on charges of conspiring to violate the corrupt practices act.

HUNGER STRIKE IS ENDED

(By Associated Press)

Danville, Ill., January 15.—Mrs. Earnest S. Harrington, who claimed to have been fasting for 48 days to induce her husband to join a church, ended her hunger strike today upon being advised by the Reverend E. S. Payne, of Eldorado, to take food.

The woman immediately consented and drank a glass of milk in the presence of the minister.

Earnest S. Harrington, the woman's husband, for whom she declared she suffered the strike, says his wife has "seen the error of her own way and is willing to resume her daily routine of life."

He said he has not joined church and will not do so until he "gets ready."

Mrs. Harrington is not expected to suffer any ill effects from breaking her fast, as it is the general belief of physicians here that she has not been abstaining from food for more than a week at most.

Immediately after drinking the milk she admitted she felt better and said she would not resume her fast.

BANDITS HAVE AUTO SMASHUP

(By Associated Press)

Dallas, Texas, January 15.—With one alleged bandit dead and another in custody the police today were searching Fort Worth for four other men who robbed the Jackson Street sub-postoffice here last night, escaping with two bags of registered mail after seriously wounding three post office employees.

Rufus Clemens, of San Antonio, was killed when the bandits' car was wrecked near Fort Worth, the police said. W. S. Scrivner, who was injured in the automobile wreck, was brought here from Fort Worth.

Scrivner, according to the police, confessed to participation in the robbery. Officials said they expected to arrest the leader of the band.

Twenty-eight thousand dollars' worth of mutilated paper money taken from the stolen pouches was divided between the robbers at the leader's home here last night, the police said they had learned.

There was no record vote on any of the seven amendments which were added to the bill in today's meeting, although Senator Simmons, Democrat, of North Carolina, said the Democrats "generally had voted against everything."

One of the amendments agreed to yesterday, that of placing a duty on certain dairy products, was changed today, a higher rate being accepted.

The warrant was sent here by the chief of police of Madison and specifies the theft of $100.

WASHINGTON HI LOSES ANOTHER

Washington High School lost its second basketball game of the season at Greenfield Friday evening when McClain High triumphed over the Blue and White quintet, 24 to 3.

The big gymnasium of McClain was packed to its full capacity and the sidelines were jammed when the game was called. Many Washington fans were in the crowd.

That Washington lost through inability to shoot baskets was unanimous opinion. The highly touted team work of McClain was equaled by the Washington men but ill luck pursued their efforts to put the ball through the rings.

With a five man defense the Washington team kept the Green field five away from the basket at a fairly respectable distance during the first half, but failed to score with the exception of one point made by John Deen via the foul route. The score at the end of the first half was 9 to 1.

McClain displayed some beautiful pass work in the second period but this was partly solved by the Washington men. It was a source of pleasure to the Washington fans that the locals held the fast Greenfield team to practically the same number of points in the first half that East High of Columbus and Springfield High did when McClain defeated both these schools.

John Deen was playing at forward after having been on a cane all week with a sprained ankle, and he had been able to practice but one evening before the game. Fred Beck showed that he was the equal of the McClain guards by his playing.

The game was exceptionally clean and very few fouls were called.

With Hillsboro coming here for the first game of the season on the local floor Friday evening Washington expects to win the first victory of the season. Their showing against such a team as McClain has this year has inspired confidence.

The following were the lineups: Washington High—Deen, R; Rogers, R; Perrill, E; Beck, L; Flee, R. Substitutions, Case for Flee; Miller for Case.

McClain High—Robinson, R; Armstrong, R; Baumgartner, C; Smith, L; Stroup, R.

Referee—Ogan of Jamestown.

TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often despondent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. MAUDE E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

AMERICAN FOOD, AND LOTS OF IT, WINS ADMIRAL'S CHARGES

The seven children and their foster mother, Eugenia Solifanovia, at their first breakfast in Washington, served them at the children's hospital.

Big dishes of oatmeal, lots of cream, nice fresh eggs and ham for breakfast. More good American food for dinner and supper. How would it all appeal to you if for months you had been living on hit or miss food—sometimes missing a meal altogether? Well then, you can just imagine how the seven Russian children recently brought to America by Rear Admiral Newton R. McCully are enjoying life. Five of the children, who range from three to twelve years, are orphans. The admiral is a bachelor, but his mother and his niece are going to help see that the children get enough mothering.

The admiral also brought from Russia, Eugenia Solifanovia as foster mother and guardian to the children. The oldest one of the seven is Nikolai, who is twelve. Lommila Mantzkaya is eleven, and Nina Funnin is eight. The others have been too busy getting acquainted to translate their names for reporters.

HIGH SCHOOL GIVES SECOND LITERARY PROGRAM FRIDAY

Washington High School gave the second Forum Literary program Friday afternoon in the high school auditorium with the student body and many visitors present.

The program was given by the division of the schools captained by Dorothy Dick. Howard Davis is leader of the division which gave the first program.

President Thomas Rogers presided on the platform assisted by the Secretary, Miss Helen Durant.

The program was opened with a selection by the Boy's Glee Club and followed by a highly humorous talk on "fads" by Russell Rine, the president of the senior class. The speaker chose marriage for his subject and his development of the theme was handled in an exceptional manner.

The Girl's Glee Club had its part in the program and rendered a selection.

It marked the first appearance of the High School Symphony Orchestra which is made up of seven girls. The high school orchestra is the representative school musical organization and interspersed the program with frequent numbers.

Miss Portia Brownell drew from the two statues, "Apollo" and "Diana of the Chase" inspiration for a short talk. Oliver Miller gave a clever recitation in Irish dialect. Miss Ruth Tanquary splendidly described "The Angels."

Frank Beck was heard with perhaps even more interest than any other on the program when he described "The Close of the World War from Personal Observation." Beck is a veteran of the World War having served many months in the United States Navy on active service.

Lantern slides assisted Miss Marjorie Klever in giving an intimate description of Fort Ancient and Serpent Mound. Colored slides of this historic mound work gave the students who had not seen it first hand observation.

The Glee Clubs closed the program. So popular have the programs by the Literary Society become and so much interest has been displayed, not only in the student body, but among many who are always present that they will be a monthly feature in school work.

MUCH INTEREST IN INSTITUTES

State Speakers, Dinner Served By Women of M. E. Church, and Orchestra Are Features In Bloomingburg's Annual Institute.

Bloomingburg's Annual Farmer's Institute opened Friday morning and continued during the day with three sessions, each one largely attended and with much interest displayed. Two sessions were underway Saturday, the second and closing day. The institute ended in the afternoon with the annual committee report and the election of officers.

Dinner is being served each day in the basement of the M. E. Church by the women of the congregation and this was unusually successful. More than 100 persons took dinner Friday and an equally large number Saturday. It was served Friday by the young matrons of the church and Saturday by the elderly matrons.

Added pleasure came with Friday evening's session when Harvey's Orchestra of this city played.

Mrs. Thomas T. Pierce, who delighted her audiences at Good Hope and Jeffersonville was the first speaker Friday morning. She delivered her interesting lecture, "Birds of Ohio." G. W. Galehouse, of Marshalville, who was also a speaker at the two institutes held in this county this week spoke entertainingly and authoritatively on "Our Best Crop—the Boys and Girls."

Willard Kirk of Bloomingburg and the State Speakers, Mr. Galehouse and Mrs. Pierce had the floor Friday afternoon. The problems of the community from every angle were discussed Friday evening by Mrs. Pierce and Mr. Galehouse.

The likeness is very pronounced, and the detail work is exceptionally clever, so that all who know Corporal Backenstoe have no difficulty in recognizing him in the work produced by Mr. Miller.

The background of the portrait is a rolling landscape with small stream passing through it. The ruins of a French home looming on a small hill, and the broken bridge upon which Backenstoe is leaning, give a touch of war to the picture.

Immediate medical attention was necessary. Many deep burns resulted but none of the acid reached her eyes.

SUIT TO SET ASIDE DEED IS DISMISSED

In the case of James A. Gillespie against Venia Shepherd, Lily Shepherd and Ollie Yeoman and Ailis P. Yeoman, heirs of Mary Gillespie, deceased, to set aside a deed made in 1910 by plaintiff to his wife, Mary Gillespie, on the grounds of undue influence, the court found in favor of the defendants, quitted their title to 100 acres of land in Range township, Madison county, and dismissed the petition. Judge Hornbeck was on the bench.

Maddox & Maddox of this city represented the defendants.

CHLORINE WILL BE USED IN WATER

The chlorine treatment of the municipal water supply of Hillsboro has been started in an effort to kill the typhoid germs contained in the water supply in Hillsboro.

Flushing of the water mains started Wednesday, and continuous tests will be made of the water until it is found to be absolutely pure.

The chlorine will be used in large quantities for sometime until the entire system is rendered pure.

Until the water is pronounced pure it will be boiled by all careful household users.

REAL COINCIDENT

Two men who have traveled half way across the continent to look up their family records were browsing around the court house Thursday looking through the old records there.

One, W. L. Cox, of Chillicothe, Missouri, was in search of relatives of a grandmother, and the other C. H. Wallis of Boise, Idaho, was in search of the same relative. The two met at the court house and comparing notes found that they were related.

A grandfather of W. L. Cox emigrated from this city in 1818 and founded the town of Chillicothe, Missouri, naming it after this city.—Chillicothe Gazette.

PLAN COMBINATION AGAINST CAPITAL

(By Associated Press)
Buenos Aires, (By Mail)—The Argentine provinces are trying to form a combination against Buenos Aires, the capital city. Overtures are being conducted between political leaders of some of the provinces for the formation of a "League of Governors" for the purpose of uniting the northern agricultural districts of the country against Buenos Aires and other coastal districts. Some political observers see in this movement an attempt to return to the former division of the country politically into opposing sections while others maintain that it merely is an economic measure having as its purpose the protection of the productive areas.

To Argentina, the city of Buenos Aires has the relation of the spout to the tea-kettle and practically all of the wealth of the country pours through it. It is at once the financial, distributing and political capital of the country. It is claimed by the leaders of the League idea, the city has disproportionate power and the northern states need union to off set this.

Bursting Bubbles

The collapse of D'Annunzio's bubble while perhaps one of the more important ones floating about during the last five years, has by no means cleared the world atmosphere of all the harmful vari-colored socialistic gewgaws which promise so much to the mind's eye but are absolutely incapable of withstanding the touch of the hard substance of fact in every day existence.

There are scores of just such bubbles—some, of course, larger and more harmful in their attractions than others, that must soon explode and dissolve into space.

The fact that thousands of people have forsaken the known paths—in government and trade—to race madly after fool ideals, is proof of just how far the great war pulled us out of plumb with creation and its laws.

Too many people have been living in a hot house prosperity, "enjoying" wealth they never earned and as a part of that "enjoyment" permitted their minds to indulge in vagaries of life and social conditions, for their own good and for the good of the world.

Every day now thousands of people who have had the time and the inclination to chase after bubbles, are stumbling over hard facts that rise up in their pathways.

The bruises they receive from the jagged surfaces of life's realities cause them to lose interest in the bubbles which idealists—and worse—persist in launching forth to attract the credulous.

Life is fact—serious, stubborn fact—which must be dealt with. No bubble of business or of government, however beautiful and promising, can float over or around those facts of life.

Whenever the bubble, whether it is D'Annunzio's beautiful dream, that awful thing of Lennine's and Trotsky's or Vanderlip's trade bubble, strikes real substance, the result is the same.

We must get back to a realization of facts, to our knowledge that facts must be dealt with. We must follow facts, not bubbles, and shape our course with regard to facts.

When we have less time and money we will realize more the importance of fact and when we do that we will have gone a long way along the road home.

Thrift Week

Next week, beginning Monday, is National Thrift Week, and will be observed in cities and towns all over the United States under the sponsorship of the Y. M. C. A.

The occasion is to be observed in Washington, C. H., along the same lines as will be pursued elsewhere and deserves the consideration and support of all earnest citizens.

The thrift week idea is one of intensive education in the value and necessity of thrift as a potent factor, through general practice, in strengthening the financial power and insuring the continued prosperity of the nation. A thrifty nation is a powerful one and is composed of thrifty individuals whose numbers measure its power.

This is the second year of thrift week observance, which was inaugurated in January, 1920, and which will be conducted annually by the Y. M. C. A. henceforth.

During the week, the Y. M. C. A., assisted by local business men and organizations, will emphasize seven important lessons in thrift—one each day—through various mediums of publicity, including lectures in schools and pulpits, posters, newspapers, etc.

Monday is "Open a Bank Account Day," Tuesday, "Make a Budget Day," Wednesday, "Life Insurance Day," Thursday, "Own Your Own Home Day," Friday, "Make a Will Day," Saturday, "Pay Your Bills Day," and Sunday, "Share With Others Day."

The campaign has the hearty endorsement of the mayor and the following of the program as urged day by day, as nearly as expedient, can not but result in the general satisfaction that accompanies the performance of a duty well done.

POETRY FOR TODAY

ANALOGY

How like tonight is winter!
Stripped of its gaudy gown,
The earth lies sleeping, underneath
the snow;
Checked is the music of the river's flow;
Silent, the forest, whence the birds
have flown,
While darkening clouds curtain the drowsy sun.

But spring is more. It's insistent call Rouses the earth from winter's lethargy;
Music bursts forth; even the frozen sea
Its icy symbols clash in rhythm free,
And stirring life rises to energy.
How like to morning can spring's waking be!

Summer is noonday; but the glowing fall
Is sunset time. In brown and red and gold
Fading as does the sky when day grows old;
Paler, its vivid blush drains silently,
Until she stands withered and gray
and cold,
Sighing, to think her story all is told

DEMOCRATS BADLY DIVIDED LEADERS CAN'T GET TOGETHER

McAdoo And Cox Faction Do
Not Trust Each Other

There Is No Big Man To Take Charge of The House

BY MARK SULLIVAN
(Copyright 1921)

Washington, January 15. — When ever you talk to any of the Democratic leaders and ask them what they are going to do in the way of re-organization, they reply that it isn't time yet. This attitude does not express a conviction; it expresses a mood of doing nothing merely because the circumstances are such that to do something calls for a little trouble. The real reason the Democratic leaders aren't doing anything yet is that there is a certain amount of strain between two factions of the party, which I shall describe at length later on, and there seems to be no one sufficiently aggressive or sufficiently impressed with the need and the opportunity to go to work and either bring the two factions together or in some way bring about solidarity and organization and unified leadership and a program. This attitude isn't worthy of the leaders who take it, and it isn't fair to the party nor to the country. Any detached observer is able to see both a need and an opportunity which increases daily and which the Democrats ought to meet and meet promptly.

The present situation with the Democrats is this: Outside of the house and senate, in unofficial life there are three Democratic leaders, McAdoo, Cox and Bryan. The McAdoo faction and the Cox faction are distrustful of each other, and watch each other for the first move. All three of them are busy to a degree, but their activity confines itself to watchful precaution lest one of the others gets an advantage. Bryan, in a way, stands alone as a sort of an outsider, but as between the two leans toward the McAdoo faction. He, as well as the two others, has been active recently in some steps toward re-organization which have been too cautious to be useful.

It is about the reorganization of the national committee that all the present carefully concealed activity concerns itself. The man whom Cox chose for chairman of the committee, George White, is still at that office. Soon after the election there was a certain amount of activity directed at supplanting White with some one who should more nearly reflect the color of the McAdoo faction. But this effort encountered a streak of strong character in White. It quickly became apparent that he wouldn't allow himself to be made a scapegoat for the recent defeat. He took the ground that he had been chosen to manage the campaign, that he had managed it as well it could have been managed under circumstances not of his making, and that he proposed to hold on. Especially he took the ground that he could not with propriety resign until steps had been taken to pay or otherwise take care of the debt of something like $300,000 which the party assumed and which still hangs over it.

In this resistance to any change White was backed up heartily by Cox. Cox indeed, showed an amount of spirit which the McAdoo faction rather amusingly felt was not wholly becoming to a man who has suffered so severe a defeat. Cox's friends took the ground that it was not Cox but Wilson who was defeated. They took the ground that Cox should be kept in the post of foremost national leader; in fact, they went further and took the ground that, looking ahead four years, if Cox should want the nomination again he would be entitled to consideration.

McAdoo and Cox Deadlocked
The moves that were made by McAdoo's friends towards reorganizing the party and putting a man of their own choice in charge was made just at a time when they supposed that according to every law of human nature Cox and his friends would be so deep in humiliation that they wouldn't have the spirit to resist. But Cox and his friends did resist and there the deadlock still remains.

The program of McAdoo's friends was and is to pull the party together, to infuse it with fresh spirit to let Chairman White out and to supplant him with some active, strong man with a gift for organization whose circumstances will permit him to give his whole time to the work. Their program of course, included paying off the debt. They were entirely willing to raise this sum if they were permitted to control the organization. But Cox's friends promptly let it be known that they weren't dead broke and that they weren't either paupers or pikers, and that they are entirely willing to take care of the deficit if they are permitted to dominate the organization.

The McAdoo program, if they would carry it out not in the interests of their own faction but unselfishly in the interests of the party as a whole, is exactly what ought to be done. The Democratic National Committee should be reorganized; a first class man who can give all his time to it and who possesses proved organizing ability should be placed in charge, and he should begin at once the work of country-wide organization looking to the election three and a half years from now. That is exactly what the Republicans did after they suffered disaster in 1916. It was this continuous work for three years before that gave the Republicans the advantage of vastly superior organization in the recent campaign. If the Democrats are to have the position they ought to have in 1924, it is not a day too early for them to go to work to follow this Republican example.

Senate Well Supplied

Come now to the other end of the party leadership from which principles and policies must be expected. That end rests in the Democratic leadership in the senate and house. In the senate the Democrats are fairly well provided with leaders. The principal one is Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama, who is the official party leader. Underwood has high ability. Different men have different kinds of ability, and it is difficult to make comparison. But probably no one would hesitate to concede that Underwood's title to the Democratic leadership in the senate does not depend merely on his length of service, but is entirely justified in all other respects. If Underwood has a defect in respect to what is now needed, that defect lies in a quality that occasionally comes to men who have spent too much time in Washington. Such men occasionally acquire an almost excessive urbanity. In the course of time, because of wholly admirable qualities of personality, they acquire friendships and fall into a kind of official code of friendly manners in their personal relationships. It is an admirable quality, but it sometimes unfits a man for hard hitting and for that touch of ruthlessness which is almost indispensable to a leader in times of crisis.

Another Democratic leader in the Senate, Carter Glass of Virginia, will never fail in respect to aggressiveness. He is, if anything a trifle too much given to satire, a trifle over-waspish in his leadership. It is only in his public capacity as a leader that this quality appears. In his personal relations Glass is a most friendly and ingratiating man. In such conflicts as are to develop between the Republicans and the Democrats in the senate, Glass will probably be more active, more aggressive, more picturesque, and much more willing to hit for blood than Underwood will be.

Another Democratic senator who has as much ability as any man in that body and who will compare with the ablest senators of any time is Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. In the coming tariff debates Senator Simmons of North Carolina will show the results of his intelligence and long experience.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska has achieved a degree of leadership because of his responsibility for the management of the League of Nations fight in the recent senate. He, like Senator Underwood, is almost a little too urbane, a little too free from passion of any kind of fighting leadership necessary to make a gripping impression on the public.

House Badly Off.

In the house the Democrats are frankly badly off for leaders. Two of the very best Democrats in the house, men with qualities entirely adequate for leadership at any time or place were defeated in the recent election. These two are Cordell Hull of Tennessee and Henry T. Rainey of Illinois.

Champ Clark of Missouri, the most seasoned of all the Democratic leaders in the house, also lost his place in the recent landslide. The official leader of the Democrats in the house is and will be Claude Kitchin of North Carolina. Kitchin has a powerful and picturesque personality, but he is rather over-violent in manner and speech to be just what is needed for that cautious and sure-footed acquiring of public confidence that is necessary.

That covers all that is most available in any present survey of the Democratic possibilities for leadership in either official or unofficial life. What is now needed is for these men to come together in a kind of a board of strategy which should determine the policies of the party and give expression to them. A man with organizing genius and with the leisure to give all his time to the work should be made chairman of the national committee and should immediately get down to the hard work of detailed organization in every precinct in the country. This man should be in steady consultation with Underwood, Kitchin Glass and other party leaders in the house and senate whose utterances will be taken by the public as more or less the official expressions of Democratic policy. To this combination should be added the three Democratic leaders who are in unofficial life—McAdoo, Cox and Bryan.

In bringing such a group as this into co-operation, there are obvious differences to reconcile, but every one of them is intelligent enough to see and unselfish to contribute toward the possibilities of party success and public usefulness that lie in co-operation. If they don't co-operate—if they go to each in his individual course—the public will never get any clear picture of opposition to the Republicans. If they all continue in the individual courses they are now following, the public will never be impressed with any idea of a coherent policy that can be called the policy of the Democratic party. If each goes his own way the aggregate of their utterances and of the positions they take on various issues that come up will cause the public to think of Democratic policy as a more or less crazy patchwork thing.

Open Disagreement

Already in the few weeks of the present session there has been the most illogical diverseness in the positions taken by the Democratic leaders inside and outside of official life. For example, a few days after the Democratic secretary of the treasury had opposed the War Finance Corporation, and at the moment when the Democratic president was in the act of vetoing it, McAdoo comes out in favor of it. On the allied question of directing the Federal Reserve Board to extend greater credits to farmers, one Democratic senator, Glass of Virginia, helped lead the opposition, while another Democratic senator, Harrison of Mississippi, was one of the most vehement leaders in favor of it. On another occasion, when a Democratic secretary of the treasury recommended certain changes in the tax laws, the most violent denunciation was that which came from the Democratic leader of the house, Mr. Kitchin.

If the Democrats are to respond to the need which the country now has and will increasingly have for a party to give expression to that portion of the public which does not like the Republican program, then these leaders must co-operate and must give the public a clear and coherent picture of an alternative program. The Democratic leaders owe this to their party and to the public. After all, in spite of the figures of the recent election it remains a fact that there are a good many million voters who want the leadership of the Democratic party. That this number will increase steadily from this day on is a prophecy which no one needs to be a seer in order to make. In fact, I am told that already the faint beginnings are apparent of the swing of the pendulum away from its November position.

The Democratic leaders tell me that during the past few weeks, in isolated elections, one in Delaware and one in Massachusetts, communities which went Republican strongly in November have now gone Democratic. That this discontent with the Republicans will increase goes without saying. There will be dissatisfaction to some degree or other with Harding's cabinet when he announces it; there will be dissatisfaction to some degree or other with the policies that he lays down in his inaugural address; there will be dissatisfaction to some degree or other with whatever the Republicans set out to do about the tariff and about taxation. Added to all this there will be an economic discontent which will call increasingly for some kind of political leadership in opposition to the Republicans.

If the Democratic leaders fail to pull themselves together and satisfy the need and the opportunity, then all this discontent will express itself more or less fruitlessly in branches within the Republican party and in feeding the fires of radical movements which are sure to start during the coming year, both in the cities where unemployment will be general and in the farming country where distress will be acute.

RANDOM NOTES

SOCIAL : PERSONAL MENTION : CLUBS

Gross cash receipts realized from the serving of thousands of meals through America on the noon of February 1st, it is planned, will be set aside by the Young Women's Christian Association as a gift to the European Relief Council, the purpose of which is the saving of 3,500,000 European children from starvation this winter, according to a telegram from Mrs. Lewis Lapham of the Y. W. C. A. Nation Board to the Cincinnati Field Office for Ohio and West Virginia. The quota to be raised is $33,000,000.

Herbert Hoover, chairman of the movement in America as head of the American Relief Administration has requested the Y. W. C. A. to set aside a time as "Invisible Guest Day." The action of the National Board of the Association in New York, in thus designating February 1st, is symbolic of the sharing of its food with the starving children of Europe. This will be done in thousands of cafeterias and lunch rooms conducted by the Y. W. C. A. in all parts of the United States. Guests will be invited also to subscribe the price of a meal for an invisible child guest at that time, in addition to the cost of their usual noonday luncheon, which is contributed by the Association in order that the sum may be swelled as much as possible.

The Y. W. C. A. is co-operating in the raising of the fund with the American Red Cross, American Friends Relief Committee, Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Knights of Columbus, Young Men's Christian Association, and American Relief Administration.

Miss Ruth Carr complimented her mother, Mrs. John Carr upon the occasion of her birthday, Friday, with the guests a dozen of Mrs. Carr's close friends.

The hours were from three to eight-thirty, the hostess serving a lovely three course supper. Miss Clarabel Wood assisted in the hospitalities.

The honor guest received a number of much appreciated gifts, including beautiful bouquets of roses and carnations and potted plants, begonias.

Mary Garden, American Grand Opera star, in being elected general director of the Chicago Opera Association on the thirteenth, is the world's first woman director of an opera company. She will receive no compensation beyond the amount paid for her regular performances as an artist of the company.

Miss Garden was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1877, and came to America with her parents when she was 6 years old. After a short residence in the east, the family came to Chicago, where Miss Garden began the study of music which was later continued in Paris.

She made her debut in the title role of "Louise" at the opera comique in Paris in 1900. Her American debut was made in "Thais" at New York in 1907. Since then she has gained world wide recognition for her impersonations of such characters as "Marguerite," "Salome," "Thais," "Carman," "Sappho" and "Louise."

The Willing Workers Class of the Staunton M. E. Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wilson Wednesday evening, January twelfth.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Dale Miller had charge of the devotionals, and seventeen members responded to roll call. After the lesson study in charge of Mrs. Nettie Wright there were a number of well rendered piano numbers by Mrs. C. F. Winkle, Miss Dorothy Hoskins and Mr. Dale Miller.

The next meeting was announced for January twenty-sixth at the home of Miss Blanche Roberts.

Marriage is entertainingly presented by Helen Camp as a business partnership, where common interests, common aims, common work holds the partners together.

And so it is with marriage. Common interests, common aims, common work make for the enduringness of the bond. Out of every 100 marriages in the United States only eight end in divorce. The remaining 92 stand.

Statistics show that the majority of divorces are granted to the childless.

Where husband and wife are united in the common work of bringing up a family they are far less likely to be dissatisfied with each other, and even where they are not actually satisfied a certain unselfishness often keeps them together for the good of the children. Statistics again come to our aid, showing that the child who is brought up in a family—even in a family that is not of the best—fares better in this world than the child who is brought up in an institution.

The remedy for divorce is not making the marriage laws more binding or the divorce laws more difficult but in bringing new interests, new enthusiasms, new vitality into the marriage relation. Where you find husband and wife interested together in society and sports, so that they like to go to the same places and do the same things, you nearly always find them happy.

Again, where you find them engaged in business together you usually find them contented. The reason why the stenographer often proves more popular than the wife is because there is more in common between the man and his secretary than between the man and his wife.

The wise wife today makes herself necessary as well as useful to her husband—and there is a difference between being useful and being necessary, as every wise woman knows. Many women who are perfectly useless as housewives (the old and accepted sphere of usefulness for women) are still absolutely necessary as comrades. Their buoyancy and sympathetic companionship make home a sort of refuge from the relentless drive of business. After all a man can find many women who will keep house for him, and only one presumably—at least only one at a time—who is the chosen of all chosen companions.

"Do you know why the chorus girl is popular?" a business man asked the other day. "It is because she takes a man's mind off himself, talks another language, makes him forget himself. If he goes home to his wife the chances are she entertains him with tales of Johnny's misbehavior, or the high cost of something or other about which he doesn't care a fig. But the chorus girl—she just laughs and chatters."

In these remarks there is food for serious thinking by serious women.

The Mt. Carmel Ladies Aid Society met with Mrs. George Cline, Thursday afternoon. After devotionals, Bobby Carman, gave a recitation.

Business was then taken up, and there was a very gratifying report from the Secretary and Treasurer, as to the financial condition of the society. Smaller butterfly bows in the yellow tied the handles of conserve dishes, while still tinier ones were mounted on the place cards.

The dinner guests, members of the Thursday Bridge-luncheon club and their husbands formed a most congenial group and the gaiety of the dinner hour reached its aftermath in a progressive card game.

"Honest Confession is Good for the Soul"

One day this week an article appeared in a Washington C. H. newspaper relative to an injury sustained by a well known lady residing near Greenfield. The particulars of the case undoubtedly reached the newspaper office thru those vitally concerned who, of course, had received their information from the physicians in charge.

To quote from the item: " recently sustained serious injury when a section of a shed fell upon her causing partial paralysis of the lower extremities BY REASON OF INJURY TO THE SPINE." The article further states that an operation was performed "removing part of one vertebra GIVING RELIEF FROM PARALYSIS."

In other words, pressure upon nerves in the spine caused partial paralysis in this case. Had the pressure been greater the paralysis would have been more complete or had the pressure on the nerves been less the damage to the extremities would have been less.

If pressure upon nerves at a given point in the spine is sufficient to cause paralysis of the lower extremities, isn't it logical to believe that pressure upon nerves elsewhere in the spine will cause trouble elsewhere in the body?

The degree of pressure on nerves determines the extent of trouble to the parts of the body affected by the particular nerves pinched.

The unit of structure of the human body is a CELL just as the unit of structure of a brick house is a brick and each of those cells depends upon a NERVE FIBRE to keep it alive. Consequently if those life-sustaining impulses conducted by the nerves are hindered by pressure, ill-health and disease result.

The business of the Chiropractor is to release nerve pressure. "When the spine is right the man is right." If you are sick of being sick see us. Give Chiropractic a chance. It is the sane, sensible, natural way to Health.

VICTIMS SHOT DOWN IN COLD BLOOD BY THUGS

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 15.—Six armed men robbed the Broadway branch of the Saginaw County Savings bank tonight, shot and killed L. M. Persons, an insurance man, and Martin L. Debats, president of the Valley Home Telephone Co., and escaped with loot estimated by bank officials at $5000.

The bandits departed in the direction of Saginaw, according to the police. Debats and Persons were the last customers in the bank, which was about to close for the night. Persons had just turned away from the receiving tellers' window and Debats had taken his place when the bandits dashed through the doors and immediately opened fire, their first shots killing the men.

The bandits then lined up bank employees and made their escape with all the money in the teller's cage.

SIR AUCKLAND GEDDES ON HIS WAY TO ENGLAND

Washington, Jan. 15.—Recalled to London for the announced purpose of consulting with premier Lloyd George and Earl Curzon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador in Washington quietly and without notice to even close acquaintances, slipped away from Washington last night and sailed today from New York for England.

There is understood to be a number of subjects which will require earnest discussion when the ambassador reaches London.

Among these is the project to free American ships in the Panama canal from tolls. The British government had believed this matter finally and definitely disposed of in the early days of the Wilson administration but now that the Republican party platform and the utterances of president-elect Harding have indicated a purpose to renew the effort to secure such privileges for American ships it is regarded as possible that the British government will feel called upon to protests against any such invasion of what it has regarded as solemnly pledged treaty rights.

WORK OF PATIENTS DRAWS ATTENTION

Several beautiful Sautours on exhibition in one of Craig Brother's display windows are attracting attention, both from their intrinsic beauty in design coloring and workmanship and from the fact that they were made by patients in the Mt. Logan Tubercular Sanatorium, near Chillicothe.

Miss Florence Schriver, formerly in charge of the Fayette Hospital, now head nurse at the Sanatorium, sent the necklaces to the Craig store, asking that these necklaces be placed on exhibit and sold as the boys and girls who made them were hoping to make some money through their sale.

The Sautours are duplicates of many of the beautifully beaded ones brought over from France and also made by blind soldiers in this country. Some of them sold well up towards $50.

These are offered at very low prices. They were made under Miss Shiver's supervision and have been thoroughly fumigated and cleansed.

GERMAN MARK SWINDLE BIG

THE DAY TO OPEN

A BANK ACCOUNT

Or to Add to an Account Already Opened

National Thrift Day is universally celebrated on January 17---the first day of National Thrift Week and the birthday anniversary of Benjamin Franklin, America's most ardent exponent of economy. More and more each year the people of the nation are recognizing and applying the sound doctrines of "Poor Richard" in their daily lives.

NATIONAL THRIFT DAY, JANUARY 17 Or Bank Day

HOW happy Franklin would be could he have lived to see this day -- a time when Thrift is no longer confined to the few but is practiced by the many--a Day when Thrift is National.

The principles Franklin attempted to foster in the citizens of America are today adopted by countless thousands of far seeing men, women and children.

Today the Boy Scouts teach thrift to younger generations. The churches acclaim thrift from the pulpit. Schools teach thrift in their classes. Employers counsel thrift among their employees. Thrift is truly nation-wide.

The thrifty man not only spends wisely but saves systematically and invests safely. He applies the budget system to his personal expenditures. He pays by check and has a systematic record of his receipts. He anticipates future needs and saves for them. He lays the foundation in his youth for an independent old age.

He plans ahead for the education of his children. He insures his loved ones against need. He owns his own home. Through his thriftiness he develops a resourceful and dependable personality. He strengthens his own character and rises in the esteem of his employer, his business associates and his friends. He is a valuable citizen in his community and enjoys deserved prestige.

Throughout his life the thrifty man finds no connection more valuable to him than his association with a bank of recognized standing. Every facility of a modern bank answers a definite need in his life.

Thriftiness implies a capacity for credit. The Bank's helping hand is always ready to further wise ambitions and aid business plans.

The Banks of this community are anxious to assist those who desire to save. The counsel and advice of experienced men await everyone at the bank regardless of the size of the account.

No more appropriate time than today could be had for opening a new account or adding to the present one. Make today truly National Thrift Day.

COUNTY HEALTH BOARD SCORED

Laxity Of Handling Disease in County During Early Winter Causes Complaint.

Laxity of the Fayette County Board of Health officials in dealing with smallpox and other communicable diseases during the fall and early winter, has caused censure in Highland and Ross counties, where it is claimed, a number of cases have developed through contact with victims of the disease in rural Fayette county.

However, with recent action of the County Board of Health, it is expected that immediate tightening of quarantine and closer watch for failure to report cases of the disease promptly, will take place.

The latest charge of laxity in this county comes from Chillicothe, where one of the newspapers says: "Not only is Hillsboro being threatened with an epidemic of typhoid fever as the result of its infected water supply, but it is now being troubled with numerous cases of smallpox which are traceable to Fayette county."

In a letter written to City Bacteriologist Frank I. Mayer by Health Commissioner W. G. Rhoden of Highland county the information is conveyed that the result of Mayer's analysis was probably received in time to avert a very extensive typhoid epidemic. It will be remembered that Mayer, in an analysis of Hillsboro city water found typhoid bacilli.

The commissioner states that "our greatest trouble is smallpox coming over from Fayette county. They seem to have no organization there for the control of diseases."

Ross county, too, has suffered considerably from the negligence of Fayette and some other counties. Several cases of smallpox in Chillicothe and other parts of the county have been directly traceable to Fayette county, local health officials say.

EARLY SNOWS INJURED MANY OHIO ORCHARDS

The unusually heavy and early snow last November split down many large limbs on valuable orchard trees in Ohio. "Most of the clean splits can be repaired by bolting," says Frank Beach, extension horticulturist at the Ohio State University, "but where the break is badly splintered and shattered it is necessary to remove the entire limb."

In repairing a limb which has split down and is still clinging to the main branch, it is first lifted back into position. This is done by roping the down limb to a secure branch higher up. For heavy limbs a block and tackle is employed to bring the limb back into normal position.

"Then bolts are placed through the break to hold the limb securely in position. A bolt is usual put through near the upper and lower part of the break and with long splits one or more bolts are placed in the center part of the break. Machine bolts with a heavy washer on each end are used. By having the bolts no longer than necessary the tree will soon grow over the exposed nuts and washers."

"Wrapping the limb back with wire would cause a girdle that would in time weaken or kill the limb."

"It is not necessary to prune back the down limb after bolting. Usually proper bolting makes the limb stronger than ever before."

GRAND DUKE HAS MUCH BAD LUCK EVEN AT GOLF

(By Associated Press)
Lausanne, Switzerland, (By Mail)—Persecution, financial ruin, imprisonment and exile have come in turn to Grand Duke Cyril, of Russia during the war, but he told a friend, the other day, that a little incident occurring in Switzerland last September was the "most unkindest cut of all."

To while away the idle hours of his exile in Switzerland, Grand Duke Cyril resorted to golf. During the course of a match with an American and a Swiss one day on the links near this city, the gallery which followed the players dwindled down to a Swiss family, father, mother and numerous progeny. The Grand Duke heard one of the children ask:

"What is this game, they are playing, father?"

"My son," replied the old man, "that game is a game for war profiteers."

The Grand Duke gave up the match.
